About Buckland House

Buckland House stands impressively in the North Devon countryside, solid and timeless it welcomes its guests. Inside, despite their size, the rooms are friendly and relaxing with the space to spread out or party in style. The presence of grandness mingles comfortably in a house that feels like home.

There are 280 acres of grounds, mostly woodlands, a lake and well kept lawns and gardens. A swimming pool, not heated I'm afraid but an option for the warmer weather. In the woods there are roe deer, sometimes red deer travel through, and plenty of other wildlife live there.

Coarse fishing in the lake is popular, there are carp, roach and tench. A small rowing boat for anyone to use is tied up in the boathouse. The grasslands around the lake are cut late in the summer to encourage wild flowers so in earlier months there are wildflower meadows with cut paths to walk on around the woods and fields.

In the winter the house is warmed by wood from our woodlands. Our wood boiler burns logs to provide central heating, it combines the primitive art of burning a log on a fire with the high tech world of controlling the heat so none is wasted and all goes to warm the house with renewable energy.

Lovely Testimonies

“Amazing wedding weekend! Made us feel very welcome and extremely helpful. Fantastic venue for a wedding and our family loved staying for the weekend! Thinking about booking for a big family Christmas now”

“I can’t really explain just how magical Buckland House is but I am going to try! From our very first emails, the initial viewings, the booking, and then right through to the wedding weekend itself: Tammy, Suzanne and Ralph have been absolutely wonderful. It could sleep 30 of our guests, was exclusively yours for the entire weekend, had no curfew, no corkage, and had a wedding licence too. It meant we could build our wedding exactly how we wanted it, and have our ceremony and reception all in one place, cutting out transportation: A shabby chic DIY dream! The moment I saw photos, I fell in love and made arrangements to view it immediately. Suffice to say, the visit blew us away! It was like being in a National Trust house but with zero restrictions. The interior space is huge, and it is so impressive inside that not a lot of decoration was needed. It is also surrounded by 280 acres of gorgeous grounds (some of which we adorned with a flock of retro lawn flamingos), so had the weather ended up being amazing, it would have been an added bonus rather than the focus of our day. Buckland served as a fantastic base from which to host a whole weekend’s worth of celebrations in the Devon countryside and I would not hesitate to recommend it to anyone. We only spent 4 days there, but miss it so much!!”
